Measures in place to protect the data Refer to section 4.1.1 (page 8) of the Research data handling and security guide for users when completing this section.	The data will be stored and processed on a university-managed desktop computer located in a locked office at Tel Aviv University. Physical access to this computer is restricted, and the office remains locked when not in use. Access to the data will be limited to approved project members and will be conducted remotely via Tel Aviv University's secure VPN using personal user credentials and two-factor authentication. Remote sessions will be opened only when needed and closed immediately after use. No data will be stored locally on my personal laptop, external devices, or cloud storage services. My laptop is used only as an access terminal and is protected by a personal password. Work is conducted in private environments where the screen cannot be overlooked. The institutional system is encrypted (BitLocker), receives regular security updates, and is protected by anti-malware software. The system automatically locks after a short period of inactivity and requires authentication to regain access. At the end of the project, all data will be securely deleted in accordance with UK Data Service requirements.

Please note: Home working access is available for some Special Licence data, see Special Licence home working arrangements, and the list of studies approved for home working access. If home working access is required, complete the Appendix of the Special Licence User Agreement.
